

Adante Hotel Reviews

Trip Advisor

Traveler rating:  5.0

San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "Adante will see our family again"

 ac_braden, Perth Feb 10, 2007

The Adante suited our 6 night stay including a 14 month old. The front desk clerk upgraded our room to a suite for $10 per night, this was very affordable due to original nightly rate being $60 odd dollars. I appreciated that the clerk recognised we needed a little more room with our toddler. I can recommend the Adante without a problem for families who wish to spend money on other things such as sight seeing etc. The room was newly renovated with big screen TV's in both king size bedroom and lounge that also converted into a fold out bed. The bathroom very clean and modern, in fact we were very satisfied with all the room features. Fresh coffee to brew when your room was made up every day, we had a back room which was very quiet though I don't mind the noise in any case (sirens etc). The locality was great with Union Square and transport close, a Walgreens is a 2 minute walk on Geary Street so when any snacks or drinks required they could be collected close by. The staff were friendly and one afternoon it was too wet to venture out so we sat in the attached cafe with a delicious coffee (they serve beer too) and watched the world go by out on Geary street. Family friendly restaurants are within 2 minutes walks from the hotel (Diners or similar) so after dark you don't have to stroll to far in this is an issue. We'll give the Adante 10/10 for great value for money.

This TripAdvisor Member:

Liked: Great Value for Money

Disliked: nothing

Traveler rating:  5.0

San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "And it's close to Dottie's True Blue Cafe"

 ToutLeMonde, USA Feb 13, 2007

Just what I was looking for. A comfortable, inexpensive place to hang out for a long weekend. The front desk clerk was very helpful, quickly finding me a nonsmoking room despite my early arrival. The room was clean and everything worked: the towels were clean and soft, there was plenty of hot water, the tub drained quickly, the lights didn't flicker and the TV and remote worked fine. For the price I paid ($54/night via Expedia) I don't take these things for granted! It was also convenient being able to get Internet access at the attached cafe without even having to step outside.

And while the hotel isn't on a particularly charming block, it is just around the corner from Dottie's True Blue Cafe, a first rate breakfast place on Jones St. In summary the Adante is a good choice if 1) you're on a budget, and 2) you get a good price.

Traveler rating:  4.0

San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "Great location & great price"

 GayPSP, Palm Springs, CA Dec 5, 2006

What a wonderful old hotel in a wonderful location in San Francisco. Just 4 safe blocks from Union Square, near the theatres & lots of shopping. The lobby has a nice fireplace, relaxing chairs & sofas, and a variety of very handsome men who work at the check-in. The hotel attracts a wide variety of visitors - esp. families with children, foreign travelers, and gay & straight singles & couples.

I was surprised at the level of service for such a great price. From check-in to check-out, it was very smooth. They have a free baggage room so you can store your bags safely if you arrive early or leave late. The maids are very helpful & the rooms are very clean. There is a free continental breakfast, with an attached bar/grill if you want more.

The only downsides were no view out of the window & a smoke-detector that went off when I took a shower. Luckily there was no fire, because no one showed up when the alarm went off. LOL.

I would gladly stay there again (as I did at Thanksgiving), and I would recommend it to anyone looking for a great, safe, and welcoming hotel at a nice price.

This TripAdvisor Member:

Liked: Friendly, helpful staff & safe place to stay

Tips/Secrets: Take the Bart from the airport (SFO or OAK) to Powell, & walk just a few short blocks.

Traveler rating:  4.0

San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "My new favorite in Union Square"

 heavybuddy, Santa Rosa CA Nov 4, 2006

Of all the hotels I've stayed at in SF the Adante is the best in terms of value. I paid $64.80 for a room for one night. They honored my request for the top floor at the back. Room 710 contained two double beds, the usual furnishings, a safe, newly remodelled bathroom with all new fixtures, hair dryer, iron and ironing board. Walls were handpainted with rural scenes and tropical fish--not very well done but it gave the room some character. With the ceiling fan and the window cracked open there was plenty of ventilation. I couldn't believe how quiet it was. With the window open all night I heard nothing beyond the occasional siren in the distance. The location is great, a few blocks from Union Square. I went to the Curran Theater that night so after the play it was nice to be able to walk home in less than 5 minutes. The breakfast was skimpy, just muffins toast and coffee, but at this price I think that's acceptable. There are many good coffee shops nearby if you need more. I highly recommend this hotel to anyone. I can't imagine finding a better deal in San Francisco.

This TripAdvisor Member:

Liked: Location, low price

Disliked: Skimpy breakfast

Traveler rating:  4.0

San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "Great location, very friendly, good value."

 PatinNC, Charlotte, North Carolina Oct 15, 2006

My daughter and I traveled to San Francisco and wanted to stay at a place that was convenient, safe, clean and affordable. This hotel was perfect. The cable cars are just a few blocks away and the bus stops downstairs. The cafe at street level offers wireless internet and GREAT coffee. The staff was always helpful. If you are not accustomed to street noise you might want to book a room in the rear. We felt it just added to the feel of this wonderful city.

This TripAdvisor Member:

Liked: Location

Disliked: Nothing

Tips/Secrets: Book a rear room if you're not into street noise.

Traveler rating:  4.0

San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "Excellent value for money"

 Tagster, Bristol, England Oct 9, 2006

We stayed at this hotel for two nights in September and it was excellent.

As we were in a city centre I asked for a room on a high floor in a quiet area. When we checked in we were given room 711. This is on the top floor (I think) and right at the back. The room was really quiet and just what we wanted.

We flew into town and got the BART train into the city. This was really easy and cheap $5.15 each and the hotel is only about a 5-10 walk from the train stop.

If you do this I would however recommend you walk up Powell and along Geary st as opposed to taking a direct route from the train station to the hotel like we did. Unfortunately this takes you through the homeless area which wasn't too pretty.

The hotel itself is clean, the room was big enough for us with an excellent bathroom. The shower was low but this seems to be the done thing in America as every hotel we stayed in had a low shower.

The reception staff were helpful and gave us a handy map of the city which was excellent. They also marked out any areas to avoid.

The breakfast is basic with Coffee, Juice, Toast and Cakes but this was more than enough to enable you to get out sightseeing quickly.

The location was good, really close to the shops. The walk to the Pier, Alcatraz takes about 40 mins and involves a few hills, so if this is your main focus you might want to stay a little closer or get a tram.

The only downside was the window in our room didn't lock, however when we looked at the drop out from it we realised no one would try it.

In summary an excellent hotel and I would recommend to anyone going to San Francisco who doesn't want to spend all their money on hotels

Traveler rating:  San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "Good deal, would return for sure!"
 Lucie2, Montréal Sep 12, 2006

We stayed at the Adante hotel for 4 nights at the beginning of August.

The place felt warm and welcoming. Staff were nice and I liked this hotel as soon as I opened the door.

The room we had was on the last floor at the back and this was great because no noise was to be heard from the street. The room size was ok, manageable for us who had two suitcases. It was clean and comfortable. And the decoration added to the ambiance!

We went a couple of times to the coffee shop adjacent to the hotel to relax or simply read the papers. Charming place.

The location is great even though, late at night or really early in the morning you can observe homeless people wandering around. Still, I felt safe at all time.

So, great place, great value for my money. Would go back anytime!

Traveler rating:  San Francisco: Adante Hotel: "Brilliant location"
 easyriders, Staffordshire Aug 23, 2006

We were really pleased with the Adante hotel. The location is great - you are 5 minutes from Union Square and it is on a bus route and handy for cable cars too. You felt safe walking around the area day and night, important as we had a teenager with us. We had two rooms, painted with a jungle theme to put you in the holiday mood. Whilst the rooms were a little tired, they were clean and offer good value for money. Breakfast was pretty basic - toast and muffins, but stoked you up for a while. Tony on the front desk was really helpful and offered good advice about the city. The restaurant across the road from the hotel does lovely food and the internet cafe is handy for coffee and even more muffins.

Expedia Reviews

sheilah g from long beach, california recommends this hotel

Overall satisfaction	Hotel service	Hotel condition	Room cleanliness	Room comfort
5	4	5	5	4

Posted: 30-May-07

good bargain, great location

this hotel was extremely clean and the staff was friendly. i did not need any special accommodations and was comfortable sharing a room (2 single beds) with my friend. the bathroom was modern and clean. i liked that the hotel is so close to union square and that there is a bus stop right outside the front door. i took bart from the san francisco airport to the powell street station, and the hotel was only a few minutes' walk from there. there are plenty of reasonable places to eat or get coffee nearby, or you can grab a morning cup of coffee or orange juice in the hotel lobby. the only nosh they offer is small muffins and toast. i would stay here again.

Traveler's tip on saving a few bucks

i bought a 3-day bus pass from the kiosk at the bottom of powell street and never worried about carrying the exact fare.

A traveler from New York recommends this hotel

Overall satisfaction	Hotel service	Hotel condition	Room cleanliness	Room comfort
5	5	5	5	5

Posted: 31-Jan-07

Great Hotel

the hotel is pretty cheap and the staff is really friendly and helps you out. we were nervous that the rooms might be dirty because of the low price, but they were extreamley clean, especially the bathrooms, better than other hotels that ive been to that cost more per night. our room was also painget with small murals on each wall, it was really cute. i definitley recomend going to adante.

Traveler's tip

bring good walking shoes because you'll be doing a lot of walking

A traveler from Kansas City, MO recommends this hotel

Overall satisfaction	Hotel service	Hotel condition	Room cleanliness	Room comfort
5	5	5	5	4

Posted: 21-Feb-07

Small rooms but a great place - highly recommended

We found the Adante staff to be very friendly and extremely helpful. The rooms were clean and comfortable, although a bit cramped for space. However, since we spent most of our week at a business meeting and doing the "touristy things" the lack of space was not an issue for us. The location was perfect with easy access to bus and cable car services. Last year we stayed at a $200/night place in Washington and can't remember anything about that hotel since the expensive places all seem to look about the same. The Adante actually has "character"...some of which is provided by painted murals in the halls and rooms. Although the murals are not my taste in decor they set this hotel apart from the run of the mill expensive places. If we ever return to San Francisco this would be our first choice for a hotel. The rooms also had internet service, and the Adante provided the internet cable for the entire week for a few dollars. There is also an easy to use safe in each room for storing jewelry and other personal items.

Traveler's tip on saving a few bucks

Bring extra hangers...or ask if any are available...if you have lots of things to hang up.